

BADLY DISFIGURED WITH PIMPLES

Face a Mass. Ashamed to Show Himself. Scratched Them Raw. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured in Less Than a Week.

131 Mystic St., "Arlington," Mass.—"There were pimples on my face the size of bird shot. They were dark red in the center. My face was such a mass of pimples I was ashamed to show myself in society. The pimples itched so much that I scratched them raw. For two months they had caused me much pain and many sleepless nights. My face was very badly disfigured. I used and other remedies too numerous to mention, but without success. I had about given up when by chance I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I immediately sent for a sample. I bathed my face with hot water and washed it thoroughly with Cuticura Soap and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. After the first application I felt relief, so I bought some Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in less than a week I was completely cured." (Signed) Wm. N. Gamster, Dec. 11, 1912. Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for pimples, blackheads, red, rough skin, itching, scaly scalp, dandruff, dry, thin and falling hair, chapped hands and chapped nails, that it is almost criminal not to use them. Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

English Contestants at Golf Have Cards of 147.

Brooklyn, Sept. 19.—Harry Vardon and Wilfred Reid, the English golfers, with cards of 147 each, led the field yesterday in the 19th annual open tournament of the United States Golf association at the Country Club Links.

Francis Ouimet led the amateurs with 151.

Off With Corsets and Pads—Says Paris. Grace Margaret Gould, fashion editor of the Woman's Home Companion, writes an interesting article entitled "In and Out of the Figure," in her department in the October issue of that periodical. Following is an extract: "Paris at this particular period is protesting against things artificial, and this especially refers to the female form. The cry is, the corset is for the an natural. Off with corsets and pads! Boned linings, heavy fabrics, and cumbersome trimmings belong only on the backnumber shelf."

"Today Paris has a new figure for us to imitate. Now in the days of our great-grandmothers there was such a thing as a spine in their figures, which helped to give them their graceful, erect carriage. Our grandmothers, too, were noted not only for their walk but for the charming curves of their figures, and when it comes to our own dear mothers, each and every one of them tried to possess a small and tapering waist. Then, I myself have had my own cries about the fit of my gowns, and have actually lost my temper and fussed over a wrinkle, a bit of bagginess or too much looseness. Yet all these belong to the past. The new figure knows them not."

"Paris says it is the absolutely natural figure—the uncorseted figure. It is the figure without a spine, without a curve, without a suggestion of a tapering waist line. It is loose and limp, it bags and sags, it wrinkles and crinkles. Not to make a big effort to acquire this figure, from the Parisian viewpoint at least, means that we are out of style."

POOR OUTLOOK FOR FOOTBALL

Goddard Seminary's Candidates Neither Numerous Nor Strong

FIRST GAME WITH RANDOLPH "AGGIES"

Spaulding Squad Is Showing Up Fairly Well

Prospects for a successful football eleven at Goddard seminary are not so bright this fall as in the past. Ever since school opened a few weeks ago practice has been under way, but as yet neither in numbers nor ability do the candidates measure up to the requirements of the coaching system. Last night the squad that reported numbered something under twenty, but still it was the largest assemblage of talent that the coaches have been able to get out. Manager Plimedes has secured Saturday, September 27, for an opening game on his schedule, playing Randolph Aggies at Randolph.

The football players are coached by John Kurts and Charles Hoome, both members of the seminary faculty. From last season's team will be found Tierney and Olson, ends, and Gilman and Crosby, line-men. The timber from new members was rather disappointing. Among those who show signs of retaining berths on the team are Olson and Tierney as ends, both having plenty of experience. Gilman of Marshfield seems the logical choice for center. Crosby the hockey player from Derby Line, and Wells are conspicuous in their fight for tackle positions. Montosh, a youngster from Winchendon, Mass., has a great advantage at present over all other quarter-back timber. Hastings, a newcomer from Dorchester, Mass., is prominent and bids fair to land a position in the backfield. Phil Gordon, the former Spaulding lad, is out for fullback. Among the schools that will be included on Goddard's schedule are Burlington high school, Montpelier high school, Spaulding high school, Montpelier seminary, St. Johnsbury academy and Randolph Aggies. Manager Plimedes expects to have his schedule so arranged that he will be able to announce it next week.

SPAULDING PROSPECTS.

Candidates Are Showing Considerable Progress.

Advancement in football at Spaulding high school is marked. Since practice was instituted ten days ago much progress has been made and signs point now to a good team. It is understood that those directing the management of the football affairs have secured a game for Saturday, September 27, for an opening game to be played in this city, presumably on the Lincoln grounds. It is quite certain that Montpelier seminary will be the opponents of the Spaulding on this date. On Monday night in preparation for the opening clash Spaulding will hold a short scrimmage with an organization of local football men, together with high school talent.

LISTEN MOTHER DO BE CAREFUL

If Child's Tongue Is Coated or It Is Cross and Feverish, Give "California Syrup of Figs."

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a tea-spoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food pass out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, mother! A little given today saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeiters sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.—Adv.

IN THE FIELD OF SPORTS

Manager Mack of the Philadelphia team may be mick two more players when the clock turns around to start the world's series. In the Brown game on Wednesday, Pitcher Brown sprained his right knee while fielding a bunt, and was hurt so badly that he had to retire from the field. On the same play, Stuffy McInnes had his left arm so badly wrenched that he may not be able to play again this season. Now it is almost certain that Jack Coombs will not get into the world's series. Coombs' trouble is said to be the "left over" from his attack of typhoid fever.

Football practice at the University of Vermont started this week. There was a good-sized squad that turned out for the initial practice. The work is in charge of Jere O'Brien, who played four years on the Vermont team.

Jim Vaughn, the "come back" big leaguer, met his match on Thursday against Boston. Vaughn has been interrupted since he returned to the big league with his consecutive wins, but Boston put a crimp in his aspirations on Thursday at the Windy City.

Peter Clemens, the Hardwick lad, led the New England league in base stealing. Clemens was one of the strongest outfielders in the league and his presence was a valuable asset to the Lowell club's winning the pennant. His batting was also timely and efficient.

The big Dartmouth teams are no more. In the past it has been the custom for Dartmouth to turn loose a heavy team, but this fall the precedent will be smashed. From the present outlook there appear to be no heavy candidates for the team with the exception of Hinman, the North Stratford athlete, who tips the beams at 190 pounds. The other material will not weigh over 175 or 180 pounds. Teams sent out from Hanover in the past have averaged around 200 pounds. Cavanaugh does not expect to turn out anything more than a fair team.

"Pud" Hamilton, the former Burlington high school catcher, has decided to enter Dartmouth college this fall. Hamilton pursued a course of training at Lawrence academy, Groton, Mass., after leaving Burlington. Hamilton is a promising catcher and will prove a valuable man for Dartmouth.

Next season the University of Pennsylvania will have a valuable football man in Moffit, who played last season with the Wisconsin Western championship team. Moffit entered Penn. this fall, but will not be able to play this fall owing to the one year rule.

Secretary of State Bryan refused to lecture at the St. Nicholas rink in New York on Sept. 24, previous to the Palmer-Miller bout. James Johnston, manager of the rink, offered Bryan $300 to lecture on any subject he chose, limiting the speech to 15 minutes.

"King" Cole, the former Cub pitcher, who has been drafted to the New York Highlanders, says that he will be only too glad to give Frank Chance his very best.

Clarence Stearns, formerly of the St. Paul team of the Northern league, died at Winnebago, Minn., Tuesday of a hemorrhage of the brain. The cause of the hemorrhage is said to be due to two pitched balls that struck him in the head this summer. Ever since his last accident he has not been himself.

Football practice is under way at Norwich university, and it is thought that a representative eleven will be turned out by the end of the season. In the last season there reigned Capt. Kimball, Marsh, Craig, Belyea, Brewster and Rich. These players have won their spurs at Norwich and together with an excellent list of material from the freshman class will constitute an admirable group of football talent. Their first game of the season will be at Worcester, against Holy Cross, on Sept. 24. Smallman, manager of the team, has secured the services of a man named Pray to act as coach. Lieut. Fraser, who coached the team last fall, was obliged to give up the task this season owing to ill health. Pray was last season with the Auburn Polytechnic institute in Alabama. The style of play adopted by the Auburn school is along the lines of that in vogue at Northfield, consisting mostly of open play. With this training, he should be a very acceptable man to succeed Lieut. Fraser. Among the list of games included on the Norwich schedule this season are West Point, Dartmouth, Holy Cross and Harvard. Harvard will be played on Oct. 23.

Wyoming Ore Deposits.

A brief report on the ore deposits of Kirwin, Wyoming, by D. F. Hewitt, of the United States geological survey, has just been printed as advance chapter C of Bulletin 640. Considerable mining activity, mostly in search of gold, has characterized the district since the first ore discovery in 1892 by Will Kirwin, but the town of Kirwin is now abandoned, and little or no work is being done in the district at the present time.

The region in which Kirwin lies is difficult of access, and owing to its scanty natural resources there appears to be little reason for anticipating better transportation facilities in the near future. From what is to be seen in the district Mr. Hewitt thinks it unlikely that exploration will reveal mass-

It Sounded Like Thunder

By F. A. MITCHEL.

I met Lillie Longman and was introduced to her at a barn dance. I fell head over heels in love with her at once. There was some attempt at fancy costume among the girls, and Lillie was dressed like an Indian girl, her long black hair hanging below her waist. I knew scarcely any one there and stood watching a set of dancers who were doing a quadrille or some other of those old fashioned square dances. Lillie was bobbing about, feeling happy in the consciousness of looking very pretty and showing her long locks, and all the while she was firing quick shots at me with her black eyes.

After the dance I hunted for some one to introduce me to Lillie and was successful. The girl had known I was watching her in the dance, and every one of her antics was for me. I wasn't a dancing man and persuaded her to sit out a dance with me. Then a nice looking, dapper young fellow took her for another dance, and I looked on again. This time her antics were for me all the same, but they were of another kind. She flashed her eyes alternately at me and into those of the fellow she danced with. I was too stupid to see through this feminine device then, and it had its effect. Quite likely it would have worked just as well with me if I had seen through it. When a girl wishes to attract and a fellow wishes to be attracted it's the easiest job in the world.

It wasn't long before I was going to see Lillie. She was an orphan and lived with her grandmother, an old lady deaf as a trolley car conductor whose car is jammed full of strap hangers. She was half blind too. But she must have heard by contact with substances if she didn't hear through the air, and, as for seeing, the darker it was the better chance she had of distinguishing objects. She was like other deaf and blind persons in that respect. She couldn't see or hear what she should see and hear, but had remarkable facilities for detecting what was most inconvenient for others for her to know.

About the time I made Lillie's acquaintance her grandmother was taken with her last illness. Lillie loved the old lady, and her approaching demise was an affliction to the niece. As for me, I was but twenty-one years old and had years before me in which to do courting, but so impatient was I that I grudged the old lady what little time she needed from Lillie. I feared I would be too old for matrimony before the invalid got into her grave and ceased to require attention.

Now that I look back on this period I can see that I was very unreasonable. I would go to the house and wait a whole evening for Lillie while she remained upstairs with her grandmother, hoping every minute that she could come downstairs for a brief sitting with me. One evening when I had waited a couple of hours in this way I concluded, considering that the old woman was blind and deaf and her imperfect senses must be further deadened by illness, to go upstairs to the sickroom, steal in and see if I couldn't get a word with Lillie.

I tiptoed up the staircase and to the door of the room, which fortunately I found ajar. Lillie was sitting in a chair where she could see me. She came to the door, and I told her that if she couldn't come to me I was bound to go to her. She went back into the room, turned the light very low and beckoned me to enter. There was a sofa placed where the invalid could not very well see it. I stole toward it, and Lillie and I sat down side by side with our arms around each other.

We whispered more love than today, at fifty, I could talk in a year, and to be heard by each other we scarcely needed to whisper, for when I spoke my lips touched her coral ear, and when she spoke her lips were a millionth of an inch from mine.

"Who's there?" came from the invalid.

Lillie arose, went to the bed and asked her grandmother if she wanted anything. She replied that she thought she heard whispering. Lillie told her that she must be mistaken, put her hand on the sick woman's head to soothe her and told her she had better try to get a little sleep.

Whether grandma was satisfied with this or not she said no more, and Lillie, after dodging her awhile, came back to me. I had been wishing I could burst the remains of the drum of the old lady's ear with a ramrod, but when Lillie came back I felt better. However, we didn't think it prudent to do any more whispering and refrained. I took a pencil from my pocket and some old letters and wrote what I had to say—very short sentences, in every one of which the word "love" figured conspicuously.

Men, instead of choosing as is supposed, are quite likely to choose the most unflattering. I was unable to even whisper without being heard by a deaf and dying old woman, and yet I must needs choose the moment to make a declaration (on paper) and ask Lillie to be my wife. She accepted me (on paper), and I sealed our engagement with a kiss which was unintentionally a smack.

"Lillie!" came from the sickbed.
"What, grandma, dear?"
"Is it raining?"
"No, grandma."
"Oh, I thought I heard something that sounded like thunder."

es of low-grade ore large enough to warrant the installation of elaborate milling plants. The only ores that have thus far been produced are of medium or high grade, but in quantities too small to warrant costly equipment or operation on a large scale.

Mining, however, is full of uncertainties, and it would be unsafe on the basis of the brief examination made to predict that none of the Kirwin deposits will ever prove to be important.

A Dead Beat Who Goes to a Barber Shop for Nothing but a Shave.

In the October American Magazine

Stephen Peacock, known as the Canadian Mark Twain, writes an amusing piece entitled "Under the Barber's Knife." The following is an extract:

"Who's been doing your work?" he asked. This question, from a barber, has no reference to one's daily occupation. It means, 'Who has been shaving you?'

"I knew it was best to own up. I'd been in the wrong, and I meant to acknowledge it with perfect frankness. 'I've been shaving myself,' I said.

"My barber stood back from me in contempt. There was a distinct sensation all down the line of barbers. One of them threw a wet rag in a corner with a thud, and another sent a sudden squirt from an atomizer into his customer's eyes as a mark of disgust.

"My barber continued to look at me narrowly.

"What razor do you use?" he said.

"A safety razor," I answered.

"The barber had begun to dash soap over my face; but he stopped—aghast at what I had said.

"A safety razor to a barber is like a red rag to a bull.

"If it was me," he went on, beating lather into me as he spoke, 'I wouldn't let one of them things near my face! No, sir! There ain't no safety in them. They tear the hide clean off you—just rake the hair right out by the follicles.'—as he said this he was illustrating his meaning with jab of his razor;—'them things just cut a man's face all to pieces,' he jabbed a stick of alum against an open cut that he had made, and as for cleanliness, for sanitation, for this here hygiene, and for germs, I wouldn't have 'em round me for a fortune."

"I said nothing. I knew I had deserved it, and I kept quiet.

"The barber gradually subsided. Under other circumstances he would have told me something of the spring training of the baseball clubs, or the last items from the Jacksonville track, or any of those things which a cultivated man loves to hear discussed between breakfast and business. But I was not worth it. As he neared the end of the shaving he spoke again, this time in a confidential, almost yearning tone.

"No, thank you."

"Shampoo the scalp?" he whispered.

"No, thanks."

"Sing the hair?" he coaxed.

"No, thanks."

"The barber made one more effort.

"Say," he said in my ear, as a thing concerning himself and me alone, 'your hair's pretty well all falling out. You'd better let me just shampoo up the scalp a bit and stop up them follicles or pretty soon you won't.'"

"No, thank you," I said, 'not to-day.'"

"This was all the barber could stand. He saw that I was just one of those miserable, dead-beats who come to a barber shop merely for a shave, and who carry away the scalp and the follicles and all the barber's perquisites as if they belonged to them."

Thought the Photographer Meant to Kiss Him.

In the September American Magazine, Stephen Leacock writes another one of his "Familiar Incidents." This time he describes his experiences having his photograph taken. The following is an extract:

The photographer rolled a machine into the middle of the room and crawled into it from behind.

"He was only in it a second,—just

STOP CATARRH!

Unless Properly Treated with Hyomei,

This Disease May Become

Serious.

If you have catarrh, usually indicated by sniffling, stopped-up head, droppings in throat, watery eyes, and morning choking, there is an irritated state of the mucous membrane which affords an ideal condition for the growth of disease germs.

Do not allow the dangerous germs which may be breathed into the nose, throat and lungs to begin the destruction of your health.

The easiest, simplest, quickest, surest and cheapest way to check catarrh is by breathing Hyomei—all druggists sell it. This wonderful medicated air treatment does not upset the stomach, but is breathed in through the Hyomei inhaler, directly following and surely destroying all disease germs that may have been inhaled—the tissues of the throat, nose and lungs are quickly healed and vitalized.

The unusual way in which Hyomei is sold by the Red Cross Pharmacy dispels all doubts as to its curative properties. Money refunded to anyone whom Hyomei fails to benefit. A complete outfit, including inhaler and bottle of liquid, costs but $1.00.—Adv.
